REMARKS - General

The claims have been rewritten to address the section 101 and 112 rejection.

Applicant has added to the Claims more elements that are not in the Sprunk Patent Application (2002/0092015). This information includes "having a Digital TV Tuner Regulator Platform keeping track of the activity of a user and reporting this information, having said Digital Tuner Regulator Platform regulating processes to authenticate users, content, advertisement, and royalty distribution, and recognizing and reporting back information about the user, the times of user activity, content type, name of the content, when it was entered or made available to users by the content owners themselves, the amount of times content has been used or transferred, the unique advertisement options, what advertisement the viewer has or has not selected in the past, the amount of royalties paid for and to whom they were paid." This is a unique system and contain unique processes that were not disclosed in Sprunk.

Also applicants have rewritten all claims to define the invention more particularly and distinctly so as to overcome the technical rejections and define the invention patentably over the prior art.

Respectfully submitted,
